Eleanor Murphy: Great intro! Love your energy + confidence.

I love your ~~blocking~~ blocking! Just try to make it as clean as possible.

Good princess voice! Try making the dragon's voice a bit more distinct.

Love the jokes and vocal choices! Try to make your posture and body language distinct for each character.

Liam Kyle: I love your voice in the beginning! Your characters are so distinct. Your different postures, body languages, and accents really set you apart and help the story.

The rock part is so funny. This reminds me of an HI!! ☺

I love the Jimmy voice.

Just try to enunciate more!

Emery Ahn: Make sure to slow down so you can be understood! It's better to have less words but have all of the words be understood.

I ♥ Fancy nancy!

Try to make your characters more distinct; often, I couldn't tell which character was speaking. Try using different voices + postures. Also, be more confident!! You're great!

You structured the story very well! It was easy to follow.

Jessica Yang: This is a cool story; try to be more confident and animated to bring it to life! Your nerves are holding you back.

I love the intro! But are you sure there's no author? Also, memorize fully!

Have more fun with it! It's important to have distinct characters. Try to change your facial expressions. (Wah! Crazy gravel!)

Cherlin Kim: Sassy voice! I can't really tell what the accent is supposed to be.

Good confidence, but I wish there were different characters.

Also, make sure to fully memorize to avoid fluency breaks.

Awesome happy ending! ☺ Great gestures!

Knowing the context of this book, I wouldn't do that accent.
