J. Careful w/ speed. You asked at the top of the debate if I was O.K. with it, and I said No. Make an adjustment Articulation also suffers because of speed. You were speaking much more clearly before-round. You spend a lot of time on framework that could be better spent on making arguments. Almost half your time.
Your narrative evidence is convincing. Nice!
I feel like your ③ Resources argument is most convincing.
Try to use all of your cross-X time.

Both: You might try to consider how you could change your speech to fit my desires. Asking a few questions at the start of the debate would give you a great idea of what I'm looking to see, but I feel like neither of you adjusted to it.

1: Where's your jacket??? My suggestion would be to use all of your cross-X time. You leave over 1:30 on the clock, and you could use that time to corner your opponent more. Take a breath and pause between arguments. I know you want to get more arguments in there, but a brief pause, clear tag, and emphasized claim will really help make a stronger impact. I'd like more discussion on WHY opponents should get treatment. Do they want it? Or are we forcing it upon them? Work on connection to judge & audience - Eye contact, etc.
I like the familial damage impact. DON'T LEAVE :40 on the clock!!
