- * You recognized during the cross-time that pushing the NEG on a particular part of their criterion was impossible — use cross-examination to challenge evidence, not testimony so much.
- * Use less hand motions, remain calm in the midst of the debate
- * Don't use lame jokes. Humor is more appropriate for speeches, rather than debate.

- * Look up from your notes more often, and don't step down from the stage until you have completely finished your speech.
- * Try to work with the argument you have — find new perspectives to exploit that justify the position you are arguing for.
